CLASSIFICATION IN SOCIOLOGY

FERDINAND TONNIES, CLASSIFICATION OF SOCIETY INTO GEMEINSCHAFT & GESELLSCHAFT

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY
CCS UNIVERSITY, MEERUT

By : Neha Garg
Teaching Assistant
Department of Sociology
INTRODUCTION

According to Tonnies since the second half of the 19th century society has been gradually moving from Gemeinschaft to Gesellschaft that is from community to association these two terms seems unnecessary obscure and mystifying simply because they are German what if it take them to mean community and society as indicating qualitatively different kinds of human relationships Gemeinschaft community is old. Gesellschaft society is new as a name and or as a phenomenon.
The best way of classifying Tonnies two types of Gemeinschaft and gesellschaft.
1. A description of their general characteristics.
2. An outline of the kinds of will the natural will and the rational will.
3. An indication of some of the more important characteristics of law and social control which distinguished them
GEMEINSCHAFT: THE RELATIONSHIPS OF NATURAL COMMUNITY

General characteristics: Gemeinschaft or community is defined as intimate private and exclusive living together in a localised group most of whose members know one another and have a feeling of belonging to one another.

Sociologists also add another dimension to the concept of community which in their view consists of a group of people who occupied a define territory within which the group is assured of a self sufficiency life a community has does two attributes locality and community sentiment.

Tonnies argued by the intimate relationships in and among family groups the relationships between mother and child husband and wife brother and sisters work all rooted in natural instinct and attendant emotion.
NATURAL WILL

Tonnies sometime referred to the natural will as the psychial equivalent of the body. And it grew and developed not deterministically but as a continuing process of self generation Within the context of the individual social experience as he grew from birth to maturity.

The Natural relationships of community, thus rested upon this concrete kind of natural will and in the natural order of relationships within which they had natural will grown to maturity.
These qualities of community life and natural will were also characterized however by equally distinctive forms of social organisation and law. The system of law in such a community was one. Tonnies it was typified by family law all of the nature of the Gemeinschaft. Tonnies wrote is a product of the human mind. It is a system of thoughts rules and maxims Religion is family life itself for the care and assistance given by father or mother is the origin of all divine and godlike guidance and remains its innermost truth.
GESELL SHAFT THE RELATIONSHIP OF ARTIFICIALLY CONTRIVED ASSOCIATIONS:-

General characteristics :- The other way in which human will were linked together in social relationships was described in Tonnies second type Gesellschaft. Gesellschaft or association is defined as public life as something which is consciously and deliberately entered upon. In a Gesellschaft of Relationship men were bound together by one thing only a specific and carefully delineated contract to attain mutually rationally calculated association entered into for a clearly defined purpose.
RATIONAL WILL

Rational will was concomitant with the calculated device of special contractual institutional artifices. With the construction of the bits and pieces of a technology of society, rational will was particularly and sharply concerned with the elaborate apparatus of society in connection with calculated ends and this again gave it a dominating concern with the formal, the abstract, and the artificial. Rational will was of the essence of the abstract to the analytical, the logical, the calculating the epitome of which was science.
SOCIAL ORGANISATION AND THE NATURE OF LAW

Rational will contractual relationships went beyond these forms of social organization and law and cut across them the body of law which distinguish to these relationships was clearly the law of contracts this law was led to the creation of legal persons and institutions in the community persons and assemblies formed unions in the contractual type of society Associations were deliberately formed tonnies undoubtedly also saw this spread of contractual relationships and the increasing dominance of the law of contract as a disintegration of community relationships .In short the press was the most important instrument of public opinion and this like all the other elements of rational will.
CONCLUSION

An association may be distinguished from a community from the following point of view:

1 - A community is the total organization of social life within an area while an association is developed with a particular or special interest in view.

2 - Our community is united by an accord of feeling or sentiment among individuals whereas an association is united by a rational agreement of interest.

3 - In a community, individuals are involved as complete or whole persons in an on the other hand, the members are not wholly involved as individuals.
REFERENCES

Bottomore, T.B : 1972 Sociology a guide to problems and literature, NewDelhi

Thanking You